A GUIDE TO CERAMICS

1st STEP

During this step a specific type of clay is chosen, either low- or high-fire, and cut to obtain the correct amount of mud for the moulding process.

2nd STEP

During this step the clay is placed on a pottery wheel. A potter will then manually create the desired form of the cup by spinning the pottery wheel and moulding the mud. This ensures that any geometric shape can be formed due to easy deformation of the material.

3rd STEP

The handle, formed to desired structure, will be connected to the mud cup by using a Direct Contact Method. This method requires mashing the two parts together and then using vinegar and water as a glue to keep it together.

4th STEP

During this step the formed coffee cup will be heated at high temperatures to form specific properties depending on what is desired.

5th STEP

For heavy and sturdy cups thick clay is used, these cups will be fired at temperatures ranging from 1388 – 1690 K. Some examples are Pottery, Stoneware and Earthenware:

These steps are then followed by cooling, decorating and repeated firing to ensure a beautiful end product.
